my apprentices in the Nandi Industrial School at Kâpsabet; our friendly reception by this elusive people is therefore due to Arap Ngamfigam. We should like to make it clear that this paper is the result of a short safari, and intended as a preliminary study, not as a finished and complete account.

Both Nandi and Dorobo words are spelt according to the system adopted by Sir A. C. Hollis in his masterly work, The Nandi. It should be noted, in the words Okiot, Okiek (stem Oki-), that the k of the stem is semi-voiced, i.e. between k and g.

Africa; in the Masai story called "Naiterukop" (Beginner of earth) there were originally three things on earth—an elephant, a snake and a Dorôbo (H.M., p. 266); and in the Nandi story "Tapand' ap emet" (The beginning of the earth) God found three things on earth—an elephant, the thunder, and a Dorôbo (H.N., p. 111). The Dorôbo tradition that "we have always lived here" seems to confirm these stories.

stories. Further, Hollis quotes (H.N., p. 98) a tradition of the Moi clan, that a Dorôbo gave birth to a boy and a girl, who issued from a swelling in his leg, and who became the ancestors of "all the people upon earth." We may note that among the Kámellio-Kápchepkendi Dorôbo the chief clan is the Moi or Koñgonyot. Such evidence as we have for the Nandi tribes points to a movement from the north; and since the Dorôbo resemble the Nandi in features, customs, and language, we can only

	Kapil	Kamereua [36]

[35] This high average is due to the abnormal rainfall in 1930: a more accurate average would be about 0.75 ins. I have to thank Mr. G. A. Cockman for providing these figures.

[36] These families, represented by Tote, Nekoi, and Kilanya, are not shown on the map: their area lies east of Upper Ngatepkon.
